On 14 October 2026, Narodowy Bank Polski will be putting into circulation a silver coin “Return of Gdańsk Pomerania to Poland in 1466”, with a face value of 50 złoty.

Narodowy Bank Polski is the central bank of the State, responsible for its monetary policy and price stability. The Bank's functions are described in the Constitution of the Republic of Poland and the Act on NBP. NBP holds the exclusive right to issue the currency of the Republic of Poland. As the central bank, it does not provide accounts for the general public, accept deposits from or extend loans to individuals. It acts as a banker to the State budget and public sector entities. NBP also holds and manages the foreign exchange reserves of the State. Finally, it functions as a banker to banks, creating conditions for the operation of the Polish banking system. Narodowy Bank Polski is one of the most important research and analytical centres in the fields of economics and financial markets. For more information on NBP visit: nbp.pl

120th Anniversary of the SGH Warsaw School of Economics

On 2 October 2026, Narodowy Bank Polski is putting into circulation a gold coin with a face value of 200 zloty and a silver coin with a face value of 10 zloty – “120th Anniversary of the SGH Warsaw School of Economics”.

The history of SGH Warsaw School of Economics dates back to 1906 when August Zieliński founded Private Courses of Commerce for Men. It was an institution that provided higher education in economics to the youth. In 1915 it underwent reorganisation and became the Warsaw Higher School of Commerce and later, after Poland had regained its independence, it was renamed the Warsaw School of Economics in 1933.

The year 1924 marked a significant moment in the university's history as it was granted the full rights of an academic state-run school. At that point, its Senate was established and Bolesław Miklaszewski was appointed its rector. His work contributed to the university's rapid growth, modernisation of its curricula, and development of a strong research faculty. Bolesław Miklaszewski was also the initiator of the construction of the campus at Rakowiecka Street, which includes Building A, the SGH Library (Building B), and the Faculty Residence.

The years of World War II were, for the university, a period of underground academic teaching but also a time of destruction and of heroic efforts to save its valuable collection of books.

In 1949 SGH was nationalised and renamed the Main School of Planning and Statistics in Warsaw. In the years that followed, the campus was rebuilt and expanded, and the Main Building at 162 Niepodległości Avenue was constructed. Above all, however, successive generations of economists were receiving education.

The late 1980s and early 1990s marked the return of the historical name of the SGH Warsaw School of Economics and broad organisational and academic reforms. Five research collegia were created within the SGH structure. The university welcomed relationships with its economic and social environment by establishing the SGH Corporate Partners Club and developing international cooperation within the CIVICA and CEMS alliances.

To mark the 100th anniversary of the university the new Building C was opened at 128 Niepodległości Avenue while the newest facility on Campus – the SGH Hub of Innovation (Building S) at 8 Stefan Batory Street – was opened in 2024.

One of SGH's most significant accomplishments in its 120-years-long history has been obtaining the so-called triple crown –

*Dorota Niedziółka PhD, DSc,
Associate Professor at SGH Warsaw School of Economics*

The obverse of the gold coin features a fragment of the façade of the SGH Warsaw School of Economics Building C located at 128 Niepodległości Avenue and the logo prepared by the university to commemorate its 120th anniversary.

The reverse bears the image of August Zieliński, the founder of the university and a fragment of the interior of the main hall in Building A – rebuilt after the war and entered into the register of historical monuments – situated at 24 Rakowiecka Street in Warsaw.

The obverse of the silver coin features the logo prepared by the university to commemorate its 120th anniversary in a composition of geometrical lines referring to the façade of Building S, which is presented on the reverse of the same coin.

The reverse depicts a fragment of the façade of Building S located at 8 Stefan Batory Street in Warsaw, which houses the SGH Hub of Innovation, as well as geometrical lines referring to its façade. The graphic element incorporates the years of the university's operation.
